Reflections from Student Fall Retreat

It's hard for me to pick a favorite time of year, but if I was pressed, I would definitely give fall a lot of consideration. I enjoy the cooler weather, football, leaves changing, and hunting season every year. And since I became your student pastor, fall has gained yet another great moment: our Student Fall Retreat.

Each October, the students, a few adult leaders, and myself get away for a weekend at Cedarmore Retreat Center in Bagdad, KY to relax, recharge, and read from God's Word. There are always great moments from each of these weekends, and I'm reminded again and again why it is important to build moments like this into both the life of a ministry as well as our individual lives.

This past retreat should have been called "Second Summer Retreat" since the temperature hovered around 92 degrees both days we were away. But I don't want to complain, because most of our trips have included torrential rain or severe storms! So I welcomed the sunshine, even though it was warm.

Moments like Fall Retreat are important for our students. First, we make it a point to get into God's Word. Students are treated to a guest speaker on Friday and Saturday. This year our speaker was Dr. Danny McDonald from Boyce College. He spoke on the credibility of God's Word and urged the students to make it the foundation of their faith and life. Students also have a Time Alone With God (TAWG) time where they are encouraged to spend time reading and praying by themselves.

Another important part of Fall Retreat is students being around one another and around Christian adults. This actually may be the first goal of an effective student ministry. We do want to encourage students to be in God's Word, and we want to help with the discipleship process in every way we can. But we don't want to replace the family as primary disciples. So, Fall Retreat provides a great moment for students and adults to simply unplug from the world and hang out with one another. The life and energy of the students is able to interact with the experience, faith, and love of the adults. Through the years, I've found that those moments together have proved to be some of the students' favorite and most influential memories.

Jesus routinely stepped away for moments of prayer, rest, and fellowship. It can't be overstated how important it is to take moments for fellowship with God and one another. And the great thing about God's design is that those moments are also most often a lot of fun.

Special Thanks from our (former) Interim Pastor

Dear Hurstbourne Church Family,

While I was recently in Zimbabwe leading a group of Kentucky Baptist pastors there to train local church leaders, my wife, Cathy, informed me that you had given us a love gift for our time at HBC. In fact, her exact text message to me was, "You got an amazing love gift from Hurstbourne today!"

We were both overwhelmed by your kindness! If you heard a shout coming across the Atlantic Ocean from Africa, well, that was me saying, "Thank you, HBC!" Your love and kindness to our family over the 10 months we were with you was amazing. You blessed us in so many ways, and once again you have done it again. From your embrace of my family to your kind words of encouragement to your gifts of love, you have been a blessing to me and my family. Indeed, with Paul I can say, "I thank my God in all my remembrance of you" (Phil 1:3).

We are so excited about what God is doing and has in store for HBC. We are thankful that He sent the Pellums to join an already great team of pastors. The Lord's plans are marvelous. Know that you are in my thoughts and prayers regularly. I look forward to visiting with you all in the future. Thanks again and keep making much of Jesus across the street and across the sea.

In Christ,

Pastor Doug
